Phibro Becomes Newest IPC Associate Member

Phibro Animal Health, a global supplier of pharmaceuticals, nutrition and performance products to the livestock and poultry industry, has become an associate member of the International Poultry Council.

A division of Phibro Animal Health Corp., the company was established in 2000 following the acquisition of Pfizer Animal Health's medicated feed additive business. Phibro develops, manufactures, and markets medicated feed additives to a worldwide customer base.

Headquartered in Teaneck, N.J., Phibro employs 1,100 people and has annual sales of more than US$650 million. Company President Larry Miller will be Phibro's representative to the IPC.

The IPC has 22 country members and 46 associate members comprised of poultry producers, equipment manufacturers, pharmaceutical companies, primary breeders and others with a vested interest in a vibrant global poultry industry.
